Rabbi Blames Mothers For Failure To Transmit Values

A rabbinical leader of American Reform Judaism deplored what he termed "dues-paying but otherwise inactive synagogue members." The Rev. Dr. Jerome D. Folkman declared that such congregants do not transmit spiritual values to the next generation, says the New York Times. At the same time, he warned that the current "unprecedented material prosperity" has posed a serious threat to the "spiritual and intellectual pursuits that have distinguished the Jewish people through the ages."

Dr. Folkman is chairman of the Committee on Home, Marriage and Family of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. His address was delivered at the recent biennial convention of the National Jewish Welfare Board, at the Chase Hotel, in St. Louis, Missouri.

An authority on marital and family counselling, Rabbi Folkman is the leader of Temple Israel, in Columbus, Ohio. He told 600 delegates that "the prevailing atmosphere of materialism induces some to think of religion as a commodity that can be purchased."

He was sharply critical of those parents "who dump children at religious schools one day a week," saying that this procedure would not enhance the spiritual values of the younger generation. "Religion," he emphasized, "must be caught, not bought. Children acquire spiritual values by witnessing parental behavior based upon them."

Rabbi Folkman asserted that Judaism in the last 3,000 years had developed "remarkable techniques for the survival of adversity." He added that "now we need to preserve Judaism and its characteristic spiritual and intellectual values in condition of general prosperity."

Rabbi Folkman held that in every part of the world except the United States "the Jewish husband-father is responsible for the guardianship and the transmission of the spiritual values." He said that the "husband-father supports the wife-mother in these roles" in the United States.

"It is not enough," Dr. Folkman then stressed, "for the wife-mother to kindle her Sabbath candles in the quiet of dusk in the privacy of her kitchen. Unless her children see her in the performance of religious functions and visualize their father in a supporting role, the transmission of spiritual values is impaired," reports the New York Times. The failure of mothers to make their children witness such religious functions in the home, Rabbi Folkman said, "has impaired a whole generation of American Jews, namely the first generation born in this country."

Orthodontist Was Authority On Dental History, Literature

Dr. Bernard Wolf Weinberger, an orthodontist and an authority on dental history and literature, died in New Orleans, Louisiana, where he had lived since his retirement from practice in New York about two years ago. He was 74 years old. Dr. Weinberger, whose office formerly was at 119 West Fifty-seventh Street, had practiced in New York for almost fifty years.

He had been dental librarian, consulting librarian of dental literature, and an associate fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine and librarian and historian of the First District Dental Society, of which he was a life member, says the New York Times. The society feted him at a testimonial in 1929.

After receiving his dental degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1908, Dr. Weinberger did graduate work at the Angle School of Orthodontia and was an early specialist in that field. From 1923 to 1931 Dr. Weinberger was a lecturer and Professor of Dental History and Literature at the New York University College of Dentistry. He also had lectured on orthodontic history at the University of Pennsylvania's Dental School and the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery of the University of Maryland.

A former secretary-treasurer of the American Dental Library and Museum Association, he also was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a life member of the New York Academy of Sciences. He was founder in 1930 of the United States section of the International College of Dentists.

Dr. Weinberger had been a member of the American Medical Association, chairman of the committee on history of the American Dental Association and chairman of a similar committee of the Dental Society of the State of New York.

Dr. Weinberger was past grand master of Sigma Epsilon Delta fraternity; and had been president of the Eastern Association of Graduates of the Angle School of Orthodontia. He was president of the New York Dental Centennial in 1934 and had held various posts at International Dental Congresses at Philadelphia, Paris, and Vienna. In 1932 he received the Benjamin Lord prize of the First District Dental Society.

He was a former president of the New York Society of Dental History and Culture and a member of the Bibliographical Society of America, says the New York Times. Surviving are his widow, Louise; a daughter, Mrs. Suzanne Schwartz; a son, Bernard, and five grandchildren.

Bnai Brith Urges Ban On Prejudice In U. S. Election

The head of Bnai Brith's largest district appealed for the observance in the Presidential campaign of what he termed "ground rules" that would "still the voice of the hatemonger in the land." Sidney Hillenbrand, president of District 1 of the prominent Jewish organization, warned 2,000 delegates that "prejudice and politics are not easy to separate," says the New York Times. He said the primary campaigns "have once again proved this sad truth."

His address opened the district's recent 108th annual convention at Kiamesha Lake, N. Y. The delegates represented an over-all membership of 150,000 in New York State, New England, and Eastern Canada. Mr. Hillenbrand, a New York lawyer, of Cedarhurst, N. Y., offered these ground rules for the election:

"You don't ask the views of one candidate on controversial issues, without the views of all. Questions on the issue of separation of church and state are valid, but they are not valid for Catholic candidates alone.

"You avoid strictly the injection of prejudice by overt acts and at the same time reject the hatemonger who covertly trades upon unspoken fears and hidden bias.

"Observance of these rules will leave Catholics uncomfortable at the prospect of voting for a Catholic merely because he is Catholic even if he is not the best man. It will leave other Americans uncomfortable at the prospect of voting against a Catholic in spite of his being the best man.

"And finally, it will preserve the integrity of the American political system, which is subverted whenever citizens permit themselves to be carried away by prejudice."

In referring to a series of articles by national leaders in The New York Times and Life magazine on the national purpose, the Bnai Brith leader declared that the American Jewish community "is not making the most of its fusion of Jewish humanism and American democratic idealism."

Mr. Hillenbrand asserted that "the dangers to Jewish survival are not physical, but spiritual," and decried the "deadly purpose-

Yeshiva Satisfies N. Y. State On Program Overhaul

Dr. Frank R. Kille, Associate State Education Commissioner, said that he was "quite satisfied" with the academic records of candidates who were awarded doctoral degrees from the Yeshiva University Graduate School of Education, says the New York Times. Dr. Kille, who is in charge of higher and professional education for the State Education Department, also said he was pleased by the constructive steps taken at the school since it came under the department's fire in April.

At that time, the state Regency advised the school to overhaul its doctoral program and to make other improvements, including staff changes. The dean of the school, Benjamin Fine, resigned shortly after the department's report became public, and the school is being directed by a committee of deans of other Yeshiva units until a replacement is appointed.

The department also recommended then that the qualifications and performance of all candidates for doctoral degrees at the Graduate School of Education this June be "scrutinized thoroughly" and that "a conference be arranged with us before final decisions are made on the granting of these degrees."

Asked about this now, Dr. Kille said that the conference had been held recently and that his department was satisfied with the records of those candidates who received doctoral degrees. A university spokesman placed the number of doctoral degrees at "sixteen or seventeen."

Dr. Kille said that his department never had intended to subject the university's decisions to review. He added that the authority to grant degrees was vested in the university's trustees.

The Graduate School of Education, which was established in September, 1957, is one of seventeen schools and divisions at Yeshiva, says the New York Times. A total of 514 degrees and diplomas were conferred at the university's commencement exercises.

N. Y. Port Authority Expert Recommends Similar Set-Up For Israel To Build

Establishment of an Israel Port Authority, modeled on the Port of New York Authority has been virtually assured. It will operate Israel's shipping facilities on the Mediterranean Sea and the Gulf of Aqaba. One of the first major tasks of the semi-autonomous agency will be supervision of the construction of Ashdod, a new port facility south of Tel Aviv and Jaffa.

Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the Port of New York Authority, acknowledged that he had recommended such an agency, says the New York Times. Mr. Tobin returned after an inspection tour of Israel made at the request of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

While Mr. Tobin was in Israel, Eugene R. Black, president of the bank, hinted that if a port authority were recommended and approved, the bank would be more favorably inclined toward Israel's request for a loan to help it finance a $64,000,000 port expansion and modernization program.

The bank, which recently lent the United Arab Republic $56,500,000 for widening and deepening the Suez Canal, was asked to advance from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 to Israel, with the remainder to be raised by local interests.

A major share of this money — about $46,000,000 — would be used to build a modern, deep-water port at Ashdod. At present, the waterfront there is sandy beach — "just like Asbury Park," Mr. Tobin said — and a huge stone jetty would be built in the shape of a rounded L out into the Mediterranean. Another stone jetty would be built perpendicular to the shore, forming an almost closed pincers through which ships could pass into protected waters and to the piers.

In its first stage, Ashdod would have two piers, each containing two sheds and separated by a 100-foot slip in which two ships could be loaded or unloaded simultaneously, says the New York Times. Mr. Tobin, who was enthusiastic over the progress the Israelis have made, particularly in reclaiming desert land for citrus crops, said that more port facilities were "urgently needed."

"The trees are planted and are growing," he said, "and by 1965 Haifa just will not be able to handle the additional exports and imports." He said Haifa had done "miracles" in handling a record total of 2,820,000 tons of cargo. By 1965, he said, a "conservative estimate" indicated that 3,680,000 tons of cargo would be coming in and going out of the country.

The remainder of the port development funds would be spent at Elath, on the Gulf of Aqaba — which last year handled 130,000 tons of cargo on what Mr. Tobin described as a "fisherman's wharf," and at Haifa.

With the further development of the three ports, Mr. Tobin said, Haifa could concentrate on imports of iron ore, semi-finished iron and steel items and other raw materials and on exports of industrial products; Ashdod, near the citrus-growing region, could specialize in exports of those fruits, and Elath would be the logical place for shipping potash and phosphates obtained in the Dead Sea area.

Mr. Tobin said that in discussions with high Israeli officials he gained the impression that a board of unsalaried commissioners would be chosen to supervise the authority, with a full-time executive director and staff to operate it.

At first there would be no attempt to operate airports also as the Port of New York Authority does. The agency would be self-sustaining, using port fees to repay the World Bank loan and to foot its operating expenses, says the New York Times. It would sell bonds for future capital projects.

IT'S TRUE

what they say about every Jewish household needing a Jewish publication. Every Jewish household, no matter how new, does need a Jewish paper! And that paper should be the Canadian Jewish Review. Those who subscribe to it for themselves and their children help to keep their community Jewish and strong. You, too?

BLUMENTHAL-BISGOULD

The marriage of Miss Marlene Bisgould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Bisgould, 63 Blaydon Avenue, to Max Blumenthal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Blumenthal, of Montreal, Quebec, was solemnized at Beth Am Synagogue, on June 5, at half-past five o'clock, with Rabbi Shamai Kanter officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her princess gown of white organza was made with brocaded flowers around a scooped neckline; and scattered over the skirt. The bustle back was trimmed with the flowers and extended to the floor. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a crown of seed-pearl-beads and crystals, and she carried a white prayer book with a white orchid and stephanotis. Mrs. Jack Gang, aunt of the bride, was matron of honour. She was attired in an orchid-coloured, lace sheath, with an overskirt of matching organza; with a flowered hat; and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and pink carnations. Sandra Bisgould, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She wore a pink organza dress which had a fitted bodice; round neckline; and full skirt, with a large bow in the back; with a flowered headband; and carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations. Harry Blumenthal, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The ushers were: Benjamin Blumenthal, Jack Miller, Charles Katz, Jack Boeko, Herbert Goldberg, and Norman Goldberg. The canopy was trimmed with standards of pink and white chrysanthemums and carnations. A dinner and reception followed in the Synagogue. Mrs. Bisgould, mother of the bride, wore a gown of turquoise-blue organza; cut with a fitted bodice; round neckline; cap sleeves; and bouffant skirt; and had a wristlet of pink roses and carnations. Mrs. Blumenthal, mother of the groom, wore a pale blue lace sheath; with a wristlet of pink roses and carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Max Blumenthal spent their wedding trip in New York. The bride went away in a two-piece, beige suit; and had an orchid corsage.

. . . your idea of a vacation is strolling on a mile long soft white sand beach, then splashing and swimming in a gentle surf warmed by a kindly gulf stream to a mellow 72° (a rarity for New England waters) . . . if dining in a picture windowed setting overlooking the sea enjoying mouth melting sea treats, or succulent steaks captures your gustatory fancy, if accommodations mean gracious, tastefully appointed rooms looking out to the sparkling blue deep of the Cape, if outdoor sports means improving your golf on our 9 hole pitch and putt green or practicing on our all weather tennis court with sailing, motorboating, and water skiing nearby . . . if it's sightseeing, you're a 'spin' from the storied places of our American folk lore — entertainment? — enjoy variety shows with the stars, first run films, and dancing to superb bands in our cafe and cocktail lounge . . . Remember the Cape is the home of the great summer theatres which play the Broadway smash hits.

If you incline to any or all of the above in an atmosphere of friendly people, you'll want to stay and stay at the Sea Crest Hotel, by-the-sea, under-the-stars of captivating Cape Cod.

TORONTO MEETINGS

● ASSOCIATED HEBREW ●

Schools: The 35th annual dinner saw the unveiling of oil portraits of three community leaders who did pioneer work for Jewish education in their time: Rabbi Jacob Gordon, Nathan Smith, Isaac Brodey, Henry Greisman, Samuel Harris, Louis Levinsky, Moses Gelber, Moses Oelbaum, Bernard Vise, Jacob Andrews, and Elias Pullan. Allan Phillips, a pupil of Grade 9 of the Junior High School, spoke for the pupils of the Schools, saying that, while the leaders honored in the unveiling represented the past, those present and the pupils represent the future. Samuel J. Sable, chairman of the board of directors of the United Jewish Welfare Fund; and Dr. Joseph Diamond, director of the Bureau of Jewish Education, spoke. Jack Friedman, chairman of the constitution committee, reported on a recommendation by the board to postpone the bi-annual elections to December 15, 1960. Wilferd Gordon, Q.C., in his presidential message, reviewed the progress of the school during the 25 years in which he was associated with it, and called for support by the communal leadership in behalf of maximal Jewish education. Morry Wingold, chairman of the current campaign of the Associated, reported that $229,000 had been raised to date towards the campaign objective of $375,000. Funds already raised include a capital grant of $100,000 by the United Jewish Welfare Fund; and $25,000 by the parents of the Day School. The funds are needed to cover the cost of a 15-room extension, a gymnasium, laboratories, etc. Mr. Wingold told of his recent travels in Poland and Iran where idealistic Jewish leaders are doing their utmost to keep alive the zeal for Jewish learning under the most difficult conditions, and pointed to the achievements of the Associated Schools in this direction. Joseph Levine, chairman of the board of education of the Schools, said that they sought to unify the concepts of Torah, the people, and religious experience. Bernard Weinberg, Q.C., chairman of the executive, presented donor certificates to these people who had contributed $750 or more towards the building fund during 1959: Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Auerbach, Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Eckler, Mr. and Mrs. David Josepha, Carl Keyfetz, Q.C.; Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Leventhal, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mintz, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Orfus, Abe Silver, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Soren, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Torno, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Wilder, Mrs. Edith Wineberg. S. A. Kurtz, executive vice-president of the Schools was honored on his 60th birthday and the presentation of a watch was made by D. E. Newman, Q.C., vice-president. Head table guests were: J. Burke, representing the principals; Benjamin Clodman, Teacher for the Year; William Leibel, Mrs. Rose James, Louis Gelber, honorary vice-presidents; David E. Newman, Israel Weinberg, Meyer W. Gasner, Saul Sigler, Samuel J. Sable, vice-presidents; J. Barney Goldhar, treasurer; Joseph Levine, chairman of the board of education; Wilferd Gordon, Q.C., president; Bernard Weinberg, Q.C., chairman of the executive; Morry Wingold, campaign chairman; J. Irving Oelbaum, honorary vice-president; Dr. Joseph Diamond, executive director; Miss Florence Hutner, executive vice-president of the United Jewish Welfare Fund; Julius Wiener, J. Friedman, vice-presidents; Robert Hall, commentator. These Grade 9 pupils participated: Aaron Weisblatt, Paul Freedman, Leo Millstone, Elaine Kirsh, Ellen Pearlman, Rochelle Rosenberg, Rochelle Waldman.

● WOMEN'S ORT ●

Nathan Gould, national executive director of Women's American ORT, was the guest speaker at the closing dinner in the Park Plaza Hotel. Mr. Gould inspected ORT schools in Europe, North Africa, Israel, and Iran, on several occasions; and in addition, in 1955, attended the 75th anniversary congress of the World ORT Union in Geneva, Switzerland. Awards were presented to these top fund-raisers: Mesdames M. Roher, H. Kingstone, S. Applebaum, L. Taichman, A. Rapp, C. Rapp, I. Goldman, A. B. Bennett, M. Wagman, H. Perry, W. Munk, B. Manilla, C. More Than A Toronto Library

BY RABBI JOSEPH H. KELMAN, BETH ISRAEL SYNAGOGUE, TORONTO, ONTARIO

Situated on the corner of Markham and Harbord Streets, in Toronto, not far from a half a dozen synagogues, stands a building that is officially well-known among the Jewish population of Toronto as it should be. As a youngster going to Harbord Collegiate, I would pass what was then the stately home of the Mulock Sisters, the sisters of the long-lived Canadian and first Postmaster General, Sir William Mulock. When I returned to Toronto last June, I discovered that this residence had become the permanent home of the Jewish Public Library of Toronto.

As with many another Jewish Institution, not sufficient attention is paid to the services that the library can offer. For even a city like New York, aside from the very fine libraries of Judaica and Jewish literature housed in the theological institutions and the public library, does not have as a part of the Jewish communal organization, an autonomous library. Certainly cities of larger Jewish population in the United States do not have what the Jewish Public Libraries offer.

What is unique and different about this little building, one block west of Bathurst and Harbord? In the first place, it has a personality of its own, in that its walls do not echo with earthly stillness and coldness generally found in most circulating and reference libraries. Whether this is due to the fact that this is a Jewish institution, or because of its scholarly but warm and friendly director, Rabbi Dr. I. Frankel, it is hard to say. However, from the visits made there, I suspect that this is a deliberate plan of its director, who is well versed in all phases of Jewish Law and Ethics, and in his work has adopted the motto of Shammai: "Receive all men with a cheerful countenance" (Ethics of Fathers I: 15).

Dr. Frankel, the author of several books, was formerly Rabbi in Dublin, Ireland, and upon his arrival in Toronto served as a director of the Mizrachi Organization for several years. After he assumed the post as director of the Jewish Public Library, great strides were made in the program and development of this vital institution.

Its annual report of 1959 was headed, "Our Contribution To The Advancement Of Jewish Culture In Canada". This points out that it is more than a library for the scholar or a reading room for the itinerant. Upstairs it has a meeting hall, where, throughout the year, such occasions as Jewish Book Month, Jewish Music Month, Bialik, Herzl Anniversary, etc., and other cultural evenings are held. In addition, the library has been responsible for organizing major events of Judaic events in large synagogues of Toronto.

The adult education program of the Library has helped in disseminating knowledge of Jewish traditions as well as contemporary problems of a Jewish interest. While it is true that the modern synagogue has been the driving impetus to a re-awakening of interest in Jewish learning among adults, nevertheless the Jewish library, by virtue of its own position, has implemented, and has attracted scores of additional adult students. Lectures in the Library Hall have covered the entire field of scholarly pursuits and general interest.

This, naturally, has encouraged more people to borrow books and acquire new horizons and insights, discovering new worlds to absorb their interest. With more leisure time available now, the Jewish Library should be utilized to put into practice the commandments "to learn and teach" and "to sanctify time", using it in the most profitable manner.

The library itself specializes in Judaica, English, Hebrew, and Yiddish, which can meet the interest of all ages and levels, from the current Anglo-Jewish best seller, to some of the finest and rarest of books in what we would call "Chochmas Yisroel". The various books and anthologies on the Chasidic Movement, Jewish folklore, Jewish humor, are found there as well as editions of the Responsa of the Gayonic and Middle Age Period. Needless to state, there are all sorts of Bibles; also several editions of the Talmud and Midrash as well as the translation in the Soncino.

In the past years many university students, both Jewish and non-Jewish, have been sent by their teachers to do research on their essays and thesis at the library. Not only have they been given the volumes needed but because of the combined abilities of its director, as an administrator and scholar, they have been helped far beyond what any other library could possibly do.

I do hope that more people will take advantage of the large circulating library and reference books now already numbering 8,000 volumes. I was pleased to learn that in the year 1959, three hundred and fifty-seven (357) new readers were enrolled compared to two hundred and thirty (230) in 1958. The library, a member agency of the Welfare Fund, is supported by its readers as well as by an active board of directors headed by Bert Godfrey, and containing some of the leading laymen of Toronto Jewry. It is one of the most worthwhile of the many institutions here.

Special mention should be made of the booklet, "A Treasure House Of Judaism", which is a guide to the library and contains a description of its most treasured books. Toronto Jewry should be proud of their Jewish Library. In an age where we ask many questions, perhaps we can find many of the answers in the treasure-house of learning and books to be found there.

DEATHS

Charles Herman Silverman, 20 Ridge Hill Drive, died at the Doctors' Hospital, on June 19, at the age of fifty-four years. lessness that marks so much of Jewish life today, says the New York Times. He called for a reappraisal of "Jewish purpose" along the lines of the "national purpose discussion that is now beginning to absorb all Americans in confronting the world situation."

At a panel on intergroup relations, Moses L. Kove, the district's Anti-Defamation League chairman, called for "greater communication among the various religious groups on issues in dispute among them in the public arena."

The Policy Of Surrender Of Principles

Address to the Jubilee Convention

BY ADOLPH HELD, OF NEW YORK, NATIONAL CHAIRMAN OF THE JEWISH LABOR COMMITTEE

In 1956, the Eisenhower Administration then bidding for re-election, caused to be inserted into Republican platform the following pledge: "We approve appropriate action to oppose the imposition by foreign governments of discrimination against United citizens, based on their religion or race." The Democratic platform contains a similar pledge.

Both parties united in 1956 in the United States Senate and a resolution was unanimously adopted which declares that practices aimed at discrimination against Americans because of religion, or race are "inconsistent with our principles."

There have been fine words written, warm words spoken, and a volume of assurances offered on the subject by every agency of government. The sordid fact remains that our government while publicly condemning such action on the part of the Arab States, has privately condoned such actions. The time to redeem pledges cannot be measured by clocks or days. Pledges must be redeemed upon demand. And that demand has been made ever since the Arabs intensified their discrimination against Americans because of their religion or ancestral beliefs. It is a demand that we have made before and it is a demand that we make again.

The protection of the rights of United States' citizens to travel, to pursue lawful trade, and to engage in other activities abroad without distinction as to race or religion, is a cardinal function of United States sovereignty. American citizens, however, are being excluded from service in military, diplomatic, and civilian capacities abroad because of their religion. Certain foreign governments, and I refer to those who are members of the United Arab Republic or the Arab League, which receive United States economic aid are maintaining a boycott against Americans and refuse to honor United States passports carried by United States citizens solely because of the religious faith of such citizens. These practices are incompatible with the constitutional principle of equality of the citizenship of the United States.

Americans seeking employment, for example, in the State Department, are carefully screened not only as to their political loyalty, which we believe to be correct, but as to their religious affinities, which we believe to be reprehensible.

What this policy means in effect is that a potential employee of the State Department being considered for a foreign mission, must be loyal not to his own conscience, loyal not to the principles of religious freedom of his own country, but must be loyal to the religious and racial bigotry of a foreign power. The Arabs can demand that no Jew be employed in a foreign legation on their soil. Certainly not in the legation of the United States. The State Department will bow the knee. Yet, would the State Department bow the knee to the Kremlin should a demand be made that only American Communists be employed at the United States Embassy at Moscow?

The time has come for a full scale investigation by the responsible agencies of government into the implementation of the President's Committee on Government Employment Policy which was created so that no American would be denied federal employment because of race, religion, or national origin. It must be incumbent upon us here to call upon the government of the United States to preserve the integrity of American citizenship. We must have a public reaffirmation of the principles that our government will not tolerate discrimination against American citizens because of their religion or race.

We must have an immediate order instructing all agencies of government to desist from screening qualified American citizens from military, diplomatic, or other service in a foreign country solely because of objections by that country to the religion or race of these American citizens. We must urge and we must continue to urge that the State Department provide expressly in all treaties and executive agreements with foreign countries that American citizens shall not be denied rights of travel, employment, trade, or any other rights under such agreements because of their religion or race and certainly we must call upon the President's Committee on Government Contracts and the President's Committee on Government Employment Policy to insure that there shall be no bowing of the knee to the religious or racial prejudice of Arab countries in the hiring or placement of American personnel.

We also call upon the United States Chamber of Commerce and upon similar bodies to join with us in vigorously opposing the policies which condone boycotts against American business firms which employs Jews or which have Jewish stockholders or directors.

We call upon the Department of Justice to investigate the alliances between Arab propagandists in this country and purveyors of racial and religious hatred and obtain such legislation as would make such alliances punishable under the law. No foreign power has the right to give aid and counsel to those who would pit American neighbor against American neighbor. When the internal bigotry of one nation is exported under diplomatic guise to another to be used internally against our citizens, we have the right to raise the legal barriers necessary to protect ourselves. The Arab states have sought to confuse this issue with Israel. It has nothing whatsoever to do with Israel. An American army chaplain of the Catholic faith being denied the right to exercise prerogatives has nothing whatsoever to do with Israel.

We cannot speak and demand equal rights at home without being concerned about equal rights abroad. We cannot pursue one policy in the United States Senate to assure those rights and another in the State Department or the Navy Department or the Department of Defense or the Department of Agriculture which finds ways of circumventing those rights. We cannot condemn humiliation and denial of rights for some of our citizens in the South and remain silent when a foreign power asks that we extend such policies into our international relations. We cannot say to Pakistan that we accept their demand that we keep Americans who are Jews from assuming important diplomatic posts and at the same time piously proclaim that we are a nation dedicated to human dignity for all the peoples of the world.

Clarity, like charity, begins at home. There is a need to clarify our own policies for our own citizens first. We cannot fight Soviet imperialism effectively by accepting the bigoted tenets of the Arab states. We are all, of course, concerned in the defense and security of our nation, but we will neither maintain our defense nor the respect of our allies if we barter principle for momentary advantage. We have military bases in Spain. Yet, when the Spanish government recently or several years ago attempted to restrict the right of American GI's to marry in that country, the United States promptly protested.

We maintained our principle, our self-respect and we still have our military bases in Spain. Our agreement with Saudi Arabia for an airbase is founded on mutual interest and mutual benefits. We do not believe defense of our principle will result in the loss of the airbase. However, we can't surrender our traditional rights and freedom in order to get an airbase to defend those same rights and freedoms.

The inaction of the State Department is a retreat from the previous and traditional American policy which defended the equal rights of American citizens regardless of race, religion, or national origin. At stake are the good name of our government, the civil rights of a minority, and the protection of the traditional American liberties and democratic rights. The policy of appeasement has never brought strength. The policy of surrender of principles only weakens our moral prestige and our leadership of the free world.

Sugar Coating Crimes Of Hitler Era In Textbooks: Why?

BY JACOB PAT, EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF THE JEWISH LABOR COMMITTEE, 25 EAST 78TH STREET, NEW YORK 21

We have noticed in the press that the Association of Teachers of Social Studies, following a three-month study, has been shocked by the "pussy footing" and "sugar coating" of high school textbooks in dealing with the crimes of the Hitler era.

What seemed more equally deplorable, was the attitude taken by some textbook publishers who felt that the Hitler era and the atrocities perpetrated have been sufficiently and adequately covered in present textbooks. In one case, the acknowledged number of 6,000,000 Jewish victims of Nazism was reduced in half. In another case, one of the book publisher's representatives admitted that the whole question was "being played down."

It hardly seems possible for textbooks which are charged with the responsibility of accurately and objectively mirroring events in perspective to take the attitude that under-accentuation is to be the rule. The Archives of the United States Army, of our allies, and of private organizations, who have been collecting the facts boldly underscore the tremendous amount of material available for historians to evaluate. Thus far, the material available indicates that the hideous and heinous crimes perpetrated by the Nazis and the tragedy that befell its victims deserves more than the cursory and once-over-lightly attitude provided in textbooks.

It is not for textbook authors or editors to rewrite history. But we are aware of the fact that improper evaluation can very often tend to do just that. Why deny the incontrovertible fact that the Nazis were guilty of the most inhuman atrocities? Why prevent the young people who would read the text from knowing the true facts as they are? Make no mistake, just because the millions who perished in the crematoria of Nazi Germany are silent that we, too, shall remain silent in the face of an obvious attempt to minimize the crimes perpetrated. The International Tribunals have ruled; the Archives have corroborated; prominent historians have conceded; public opinion has condemned the Nazi atrocities. By what license do textbook editors operate, that permits the unspeakable and unforgiveable crimes perpetrated by the Nazis being minimized and watered down?

Many television programs under the guise of depicting history have given a gory and unrepressed savagery on the TV screen, all of this under the guise of historical drama. It is incongruous therefore to find that recent contemporary history has been diluted lest our children be "polluted" with the shocking truth. If these facts have been "played down," what else on the pages of our textbooks have been given a Hans Christian Andersen treatment? There is a place for fairy tales and there is a place for history, no matter how bitter. Why then not give history as it happened? Are the crimes of Hitler to be forgiven by "playing down?"
